

Motorcade For Bethel Game January 26 Planned By ASA

A motorcade to Bethel will be sponsored by the All Students Association for the basketball game there Tuesday, January 26.

This action was taken at the ASA meeting Tuesday night. The ASA will pay $1.00 to each driver of a car. The group will meet in front of the Women's Gym at 6:30 p.m.

Other action taken up at the ASA meeting included entertainment for winter quarter, social date petitioning, the constitutional meeting, a committee to consult with The Volette on ASA-student communication and the changing of the next meeting time.

The entertainment committee, consisting of Sam Nalling, chairman; Sandra Bullington, David Sammons, Tom Vickers, Nawasa Jonas and Mike Rhinehart, gave to the council information concerning possible groups to get on campus for winter quarter entertainment. The Chad Mitchell Trio would be available March 24 for a sum of $3,500. The Harlem Globetrotters could be scheduled for March 26 at the cost of 65 percent of the tickets purchased after taxes. Final decisions concerning the entertainment will be made by the council soon.

Club and organizations representatives at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch petitioned for social dates to be placed on the calendar. The dates were considered by the Social Date Committee.

A meeting of the constitutional committee was announced to be held soon. The committee, appointed for the purpose of considering the revision of the ASA constitution consists of Buddy Mitchell, chairman; Marita Moseman, Chip Woodward, Polly Beth Crawford, Jim Hammond and Mike Snow.

A committee to consult with The Volette for the purpose of understanding better and improving the communications between the ASA and the students was appointed by Larry Bates, ASA president. Members of this committee are Jerry Bethune, chairman; Polly Beth Crawford and Tom Rhodes.

The next ASA meeting will be Monday, January 25, instead of the original date, Tuesday, January 26. The purpose for changing the date was to make it possible for members to attend the Bethel-UTMB basketball game Tuesday night, according to Larry Bates.

Military To Offer ROTC Scholarships

The Military Department has scholarships available to selected ROTC students ranging from $1,100 to $3,150, Sergeant Milton Jackson, Military Department, said Tuesday.

A public law recently enacted by Congress offers four and two year scholarship programs and a non-scholarship program.

The four and two year scholarship programs include funds for tuition fees, books and laboratory expenses plus $50 per month cash retainer pay during the school months.

The non-scholarship advanced ROTC student receives a $40 per month cash retainer allowance plus other monetary benefits.

The four year scholarship program offers benefits up to $3,150, the two year program provides benefits of $1,600, and the non-scholarship program provides benefits up to $1,100.

The Department of the Army will release scholarship selection criteria and quotas will be released April 1, Sergeant Jackson said.

He added that students interested in the ROTC scholarship programs should withhold inquiries until April 1. Students interested in the non-scholarship program are encouraged to contact the ROTC office.

138 Interviewed By Five Agencies

One hundred and thirty-eight students were interviewed by representatives of five government agencies on The University of Tennessee Martin Branch campus Monday, said Lewis Larsen, director of alumni and placement at UTMB.

The five agencies were the Civil Service Commission, Veterans Administration, Post Office, National Park Service and the Social Security Administration.

H.Z. McConnell, recruiting and college relations officer from the Atlanta Region Civil Service Commission, said at the assembly: "The Federal Government is a big business in that it employs two and one-half million people with 1500 different types of jobs. Between 250 and 350 thousand people are needed each year to fill key spots and vacancies."

Mr. Larson said, "These men were impressed with the enthusiasm of the students for opportunities for government replacements."

Needy Students To Get Assistance

Work on a program sponsored by the government to help needy students obtain a college education is progressing, according to Gene Stanford, business manager.

Mr. Stanford and Mr. Russell Duncan, student welfare officer, attended a workshop to study the Federal Program on needy students. A Work-Study Program was discussed in connection with President Johnson's War on Poverty in relation to colleges. This program will supply needy students funds to attend school while they work under the supervision of the college.

To qualify, a person must come from the low income families. These are families with annual income of around $3,000. The program will take some 40 to 50 students.

UTMB Farm Made Experiment Station

The farm at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch is now officially the Martin Agricultural Experiment Station, according to Dr. O. Glenn Hall, head of the Department of Agriculture and also superintendent of the Martin Agriculture Experiment Station.

Under the authority of Dr. John A. Ewing, director of the U-T Agricultural Experiment Station, since January 1, 1965, the farm will be operated much like the other branches in the area. In other ways it will resemble the Farm Enterprises at Knoxville, providing laboratories for teaching programs in agriculture.

"All that we do hereafter will be directed toward either a research objective or a teaching objective," said Dr. Hall.

"Efforts are already being made to initiate a beef cattle feeding experiment," Dr. Paul Starks, associate professor of agriculture at UTMB, is working on this experiment with the assistance of agriculture students.

According to Dr. Hall, a group of farmers meeting in Milan expressed a keen interest in the experiment station for there are many problems peculiar to the West Tennessee area that need research attention.

The station is supported by state appropriated and federal funds.

The annual University of Tennessee Martin Branch Beauty Review will be held at 7:30 p.m. on February 5 and 15 in the new gymnasium.

Committee Fixes Library Estimate At 60,000 Feet

Estimates for the proposed library at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch were made by a committee headed by William H. Jesse, director of libraries, in Knoxville last week.

The estimates were based on a forecast of 3800 students by 1971 and a book collection of 200,000 volumes. The estimates would provide for a total of 60,000 square feet at a cost of $1,020,000 not including equipment. The space for students and books combined would amount to 38,333 square feet. The remainder is to be used for machinery, storage and supplies.

Dr. Paul Meek, Dr. Norman Campbell, Miss Mary Hall and Miss Carline Fuqua met with the committee along with University of Tennessee architects and Yeats and Gaskill, Memphis architects, to discuss the details of the study which was completed July 30, 1964.

University officials are working toward getting an application filed with the federal government for a grant which would cover 20 to 30 percent of the cost of the library.

'Counts' To Play For Military Ball

The Military Ball has been scheduled for Friday, January 29, at the Martin National Guard Armory.

Tommy Burk and the "Counts" of Memphis State University will provide the entertainment.

This year's military ball is sponsored by the upper classmen of the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Highlights of the evening will be the presentation of the sponsors and crowning of the Queen for 1965.

Tickets are on sale at the ROTC office while available. A limited number of former ROTC students will be allowed to purchase tickets.

The final judging on February 15 will be based upon swim suit and formal appearance but the major emphasis of this event will be placed upon talent. At this time the queen and her three maids will be selected.

The queen of the UTMB Beauty Review will represent the school in the Strawberry Festival, the World's Biggest Fish Fry, and in the Miss Tennessee Beauty Contest.

Volette Goes To Press!

Have you ever wondered "what goes on behind the scenes" in putting together an edition of The Volette?

Because these actions behind the scenes bring to you your newspaper, let's take a look at a typical cycle - followed weekly in the publication of The Volette.

Just as soon as the last headline is placed and the final touches are added to one issue of The Volette (and most times even before this), the next issue is begun. Wheels begin to turn, and abstract ideas are considered to add to the list of possible features, cartoons, and newsworthy news stories concerning the happenings involving students directly or indirectly. The slightest little scrap of newsworthy news is placed on the list to be tracked down by the volunteer reporters.

With list in hand and an ear for suggestions, the editor goes into a pow-wow with the reporters, and assignments are made. Out the staff goes faithfully to track down, weed out, and collect the news for your newspaper. Finally, after much hard work and much traveling around campus, reporters' stories and articles are turned in.

Now, they are in the hands of the copyreaders. Remembering that the news stories and articles should include information primarily for the students, and remembering that the stories should be compiled in some semblance of proper journalistic form, and remembering, too, that The Volette is graded and rated by a critical service, The Associated Collegiate Press, the copyreaders correct errors many times and sometimes rearrange the reported information in the proper newspaper style.

Wednesday is the hectic day in the stretch toward completion. All of the stories and articles and odds and ends are tied together and go down to the Weakley County Press Office to be typed on a Justewriter in regular newspaper columns. Then the weekly Wednesday night trials and headaches begin for the editor, associate editor, headline setter and faculty advisor. The typed stories must be proofread, corrected, and reread.

Now for the arranging. Each story and picture must be considered. Should the picture and its relating story be on the left side or is it more important than the right or No. 1 lead story? Will this fit here or should we put it here - even though one line must be cut? Does this deserve front page coverage or is that other story more newsworthy? Are the stories placed in the best grouping and spacing? Since this story most concerns the most students, shouldn't it be put in instead of the other? Are they all properly placed in accordance with their news value.

These are a few of the many questions to be answered Wednesday night by the workers who put the paper to bed. The night ends late but it began early. Thursday morning the final touches are put on the issue and it is sent to be printed at Union City. Now the next issue has already begun and needs attention.

It is this never ending cycle that brings this issue of The Volette to you. Why the trouble? The work is long and hard for the reporters, the faculty advisor, and the editor, but the rewards outweigh the trouble. Our greatest reward is to see the students reading and enjoying their student newspaper with "all the news that's fit to print," we hope.

New Math Program For Schools John T. Patterson Is Topic Of Prof. Key's Report Teaches In Kenya

Dr. James F. Key, associate professor of mathematics at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch, has written a report on "Why Is The New Math Coming Into The Schools?"

"In the past, mathematics instruction has been directed toward the use of mathematics as a tool. More emphasis was placed upon getting the answer, than upon understanding the particular steps involved in arriving at the answer," Dr. Key states.

He explains that students were forced to memorize rules, definitions, illustrations and exercises due to the mode of instruction. This method of teaching resulted in a lack of understanding, and in many instances, the student formed a mental block to the learning of mathematics in general.

According to Dr. Key, "The new mathematics still retains some drill work and rote, and memorizing short cuts. But emphasis is not placed upon any of these. Instead, the teacher and the textbook concentrate on helping the student to understand the 'whys' and 'wherefores' of each step in the problem solving process. The student is challenged to think, not memorize."

Memorized facts are usually forgotten whereas thought patterns are remembered longer. "The reason this is true is because thought patterns can be integrated into meaningful concepts and become an integral part of our thinking. Conceptual thinking is a far better way of life than factual thinking. It is a higher order of thinking and hence deserves its rightful place in the curriculum of our schools," Dr. Key said.

Jan. 31 Deadline For Voice Try-Out

The deadline for applying for Grace Moore scholarships in voice at The University of Tennessee is January 31.

Pi Sigma Phi Society Invites Six Students For Membership

Six students have been invited to join Pi Sigma Phi, an honor society at U-T Martin Branch.

The names of those who have been notified of their election into the society are being withheld pending decision of acceptance or rejection, Dr. Campbell said.

In order to be eligible, the student is required to be in the upper 12-1/2 percent of the senior class or the upper five percent of the third quarter of the junior class. The qualifications for election to the honor society are based upon scholastic achievement and general behavior and character.

The honor society was organized about a year ago by a group of faculty members, who were themselves qualified to meet national Phi Kappa Phi honor fraternity requirements.

Pi Sigma Phi was chosen as the most appropriate name for the colony since pi is the Greek word which means to broaden or enlarge; sigma is representative of working together toward fulfillment; and phi means to think.

Pi Sigma Phi is designed to act as a stimulus for continued academic progress on the part of all students enrolled in it. If the colony proves itself worthy, it may, in the future, become a chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, Dr. Campbell said.

Vols Will Journey To Cleveland Union Beats Vols. For Game With Delta Statesmen With Free Throws

UTMB will depart from conference play this weekend when they meet the Independent Statesmen of Delta State College of Cleveland, Mississippi, Saturday night, as well as beginning a four game road stretch with the next home game scheduled for February 6 when the Statesmen make the long trip to Martin.

The two squads have played only one common team thus far this season, Christian Brother's College, whom both schools defeated. DSC took the Bucs more handily than did the Vols but records mean nothing in small college basketball.

Last year the Vols and the Statesmen split in their two game meet as UTMB won at home 80-74, but fell in a double overtime at Cleveland. The Mississippians compose one of the most formidable teams on the Vol schedule, and will be a good encounter in preparation for UTMB's treacherous home stretch.

UTMB Vols Take Conference Tilts

The Vols of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch took two important conference victories last week tripping Bethel College 80-76 and overcoming David Lipscomb College 71-64 in the Vol field-house.

Captain Ronnie Armstrong led the Vols in the Bethel game with 29 points.

Five UTMB players hit in double figures in the David Lipscomb game with Glover leading the pack with 19 points.

The Vols of The University of Tennessee Martin Branch fell six points short of making a three-game sweep of VSAC action Monday night, losing to Union University 67-62 following earlier victories over Bethel College and David Lipscomb College last week.

Although the Vols scored more points from the field than did the visitors, the Bulldogs took advantage of a lapse in field goal accuracy to pull out to an early lead in the second half. Union went on, using free throws for their last eleven points, to stave off a last minute UTMB rally.

The win put Union in undisputed first place in the conference

As It Looks From Here

BY DAVID DUNCAN

UTMB's Vols met and overcame two of three opponents of conference status recently, although the loss to Union seem to overshadow the wins. The Bulldogs now possess first place in the conference with a 3-0 record, while UTMB is in third behind Belmont, who has a 2-1 mark.

The situation is not at all hopeless, for the Jacksonians have only played three conference games and have yet to meet Belmont College who gave the Vols one of their two defeats in VSAC play, and who undoubtedly possess one of the stronger teams in the conference.

The Vols have three more chances to add to their 3-2 VSAC mark in games with Bethel at McKenzie, Tuesday night, with Belmont at Martin, February 8, and with Union again at Jackson, February 13, in the last game prior to the tournaments. The Bulldogs, as well as Belmont, must survive at least two more conference games than must UTMB.

The Vols are taking most of their victories from field goals as evidenced by their accurate .449 percentage which is far above the opponents' .392.

Fouling and the charity lane again seem to present the major problems. Another point in the Vols' favor, however, has been the balanced scoring received from seven boys on the squad. Ronnie Armstrong leads with 14.6 points per game, Moore Landers had 13.7, Jerry Lacy is next with 10.6, Don Glover has 9.2; Jerry Combest has 8.7, Johnny Williams has 6.1, and Joe Pollock has an even 6.0. It also might be interesting to note the percentages these boys have from the field.

U-T Rifle Team Outshoots UTMB

The University of Tennessee Martin Branch fell before the University of Tennessee Knoxville rifle team Saturday, January 16 on the Martin campus.

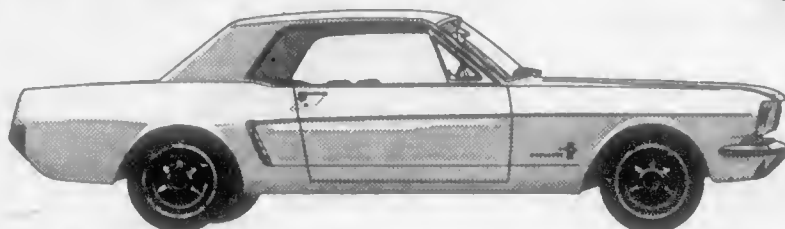

High scorers for the match were Ron Banta of Martin and Irwin of Knoxville. The remaining four of the top five marksmen from Martin were Chuck O'Bannon, Jerald White, Hugh Deck, and Landon Taylor.

The remaining four of the top five marksmen from Knoxville were McAlphin, Cox, Schneider and Van Nuiise according to Sergeant Stout.
